Compact and Sustainable, High-End Decorum One-Pint Urinal and Sink from American Standard

Contemporary Styled Bathroom Fixtures Accommodate the Demanding Performance and Design Standards of Upscale Commercial Settings

BOSTON, GREENBUILD (November 8, 2017) — A one-pint urinal and wall-hung sink have been added to the commercial Decorum fixture collection, offering sleek, modern and compact design elements that can be coordinated to create an inviting commercial suite reflecting sophisticated styling and functionality, all from American Standard, part of LIXIL.

In addition to its aesthetically-pleasing design, this one-pint urinal showcases environmentally-sustainable qualities. Meeting the 2016 California water restriction regulations, the Decorum one-pint urinal features an updated hydraulic system that functions on only one pint of water per flush (gpf). It uses 87 percent less water than a standard 1.0 gpf urinal, while still meeting optimum flushing performance standards.

Ideal for the most demanding commercial settings, this compact one-pint urinal is ADA-compliant for universal accessibility. Keeping user comfort in mind, this urinal is designed with a generously deep bowl that helps reduce splashing. It is available in either top or back spud configurations.

The Decorum wall-hung sink and one-pint urinal from American Standard are combined here with the Afwall Millennium toilet and angular Serin faucet to create a commercial suite reflecting contemporary inspiration. Fixtures and faucets are controlled using the brand’s exclusive Selectronic hands-free sensor technology.

The complementary Decorum wall-hung sink, with its 20-inch width and 18-inch depth, was designed for compact spaces that demand luxurious style to accommodate client expectations. It features a recessed self-draining deck for minimal backsplash when in use and is both ADA and TAS-compliant.

Providing various design options for architects and interior designers, this white lavatory is available in multiple configurations: with 4-inch or 8-inch centers or center hole only, without any faucet holes, with or without a rear overflow, plus various optional soap dispenser configurations are available. Specifiers can design an upscale, modern commercial space by coordinating the Decorum wall-hung sink with the stunning American Standard Serin faucet collection of deck-mount or wall-mount faucets and the Afwall Millennium toilets.

Both the Decorum one-pint urinal and wall-hung sink feature the brand-exclusive EverClean surface, the permanent antimicrobial finish that inhibits the growth of stain and odor-causing bacteria, helping these fixtures stay cleaner, longer.

The Decorum one-pint urinal and wall-hung lavatory boast the full package to meet the needs of facility managers in upscale settings: compact artistic design, water-efficiency and minimal maintenance, making this collection ideal for luxury commercial spaces.
